EPISTLE INITIATORY.

GENTLE READER,

You have herewith presented to your consideration a little book, which perchance may suggest to your benevolence the memory of better times.

THESE THINGS ARE GIVEN TO YOU FOR AN ENSAMPLE.

Should you desire the lively representation of the Collector, lo ! here he is.

Ora pro anima ejus !

INTRODUCTORY NOTICE.

IN the Ecclesiastical History of Scotland the want of a regular Monasticon has long been felt. To remedy this defect some little has been accomplished ; and what that little is the ensuing leaflets humbly aspire to show. But much still remains ere the grand object can be obtained. To cope with, or even to follow at a distance, the great work achieved by Dodsworth* for the sister kingdom, is, we fear, impossible ; still the duty of “ gathering up the fragments ” is sufficiently imperative upon all labourers in the field of Archæology ; and if the three talents are not ours to restore, we are at all events bound to husband the one.

* The Monasticon Anglicanum was purely the result of Roger Dodsworth’s untiring exertion, although the merit has, till recent times been liberally conceded to Dugdale. “ Tulit alter honores ! ” God forbid we should detract from Garter, but let justice be rendered to his Collector.

It is not pretended that what follows is either complete in itself, or worthy of any commendation. It is projected as a nucleus for the accumulation of further intelligence,—as a basis for more extended collaboration,—and as a refresher to the few who care for such pursuits.

The impression of the present work is strictly limited to FIFTY copies on small, TWENTY on large paper, and ONE on VELLUM.

EDINBURGH, THE FEAST OF ST. BARNABAS, 1842.

FRAGMENTA SCOTO-MONASTICA.

WHEN we consider that at the Deformation in this thereby paganized country no fewer certainly than one hundred and seventy-eight religious institutions, —Abbies, Convents, Hospitals, &c.

“ Reared high their holy heads ;”

and that no work, among the many that the press has diffused, has been devoted to an elaborate and comprehensive history of them, we are tempted to enquire, Do no materials exist for such an undertaking? or, has indolence and indifference so far o'er-mastered decency and gratitude, that no pious memorialist can be found to record their fame? A little examination will testify that both queries may very nearly be replied to in the affirmative.

But setting aside the latter, and confining ourselves to the preceding point, we shall endeavour, in so far as our portfolio permits, to exhibit

1. What matter we possess.
2. What use has been made of it.

With respect to the first, the registers or collected muniments of the various monasteries and sacred structures form the most extensive part.

The following is presumed to be a tolerably accurate list of the chartularies still in existence, with the places where they are deposited. The letter M appended to any chartulary, denotes that a transcript thereof is extant among the Macfarlan Collections in the Advocates' Library. Mr. Walter Macfarlan of Macfarlan, (Scotice—of that Ilk), was an eminent antiquary, who devoted his attention strictly to the historical monuments of his own country, especially the ecclesiastic remains. He caused to be made at his own expense by his clerk, one Tait, copies of most of the chartularies accessible in his time. These are distinguished for their fidelity and neatness. Mr. Macfarlan died 5th June 1767, and his MSS. were purchased by the Faculty of Advocates.*

* A lamentably wretched list of the Scottish Chartularies occurs at page 42 of a shabby little volume, privately printed, but publicly vended, by Sir Thomas Phillipps, Bart. of Middle Hill, co. Worcester, F. S. A. &c. &c. &c. entitled "Index to Chartularies now or formerly existing, since the Dissolution of Monasteries, by T. P. Typis Medio-Montanis impressit C. Gilmour, 1839."

3. Several fasciculi exist in the library of King's College, Aberdeen.

ARBROATH.

1. Registrum Monasterii de Abirbrothoc. On vellum, 8vo, 138 leaves. This volume, which generally goes under the name of the " Old Register of Arbroath," consists chiefly of grants in favour of the Abbey. Advocates' Library, Edinburgh. M.
2. Registrum Monasterii de Aberbrothoc. On vellum, folio, 163 leaves. This volume, of a more recent date, consists chiefly of grants and leases by the Abbots to their tenantry and others. Advocates' Library. M.
3. A Register of the Abbey, apparently of the early part of the 16th century, and containing much of the matter of the preceding volume, was formerly in the library at Brechin Castle, and has been presented by Lord Panmure to the burgh of Arbroath.
4. An abridgement of the Chartulary of Arbroath, in the autograph of Sir James Balfour, exists among that baronet's collections in the Advocates' Library.
5. A transcript of the Chartulary occurs in Vol. II. of Father Hay's " Diplomatum Veterum Collectio." Advocates' Library.

Some interesting extracts from this Chartulary are appended to the present catalogue, Nos. II. IV. V. VI. XII. XIII. and XIV.

BALMERINO.

This inventory was transmitted by him to Sir Robert Sibbald for the Advocates Library. Vide Analecta Scotica, II. p. 147.

This was acquired by the Faculty of Advocates from the Town Council of the Burgh of Crail, in exchange for an accurate transcript made at the expense of the Faculty. An inventory of the ornaments and plate of this church, extracted from the chartulary, will be found at page xxxv. hereof.

DUNBLANE.

Registrum Capituli Dumblanensis. On paper, folio, pp. 235. Advocates' Library.

In the Minutes of the Faculty of Advocates, 29th November 1783, the following card is engrossed :—

“ Lord Swinton offers his best respects to the Dean of Faculty, hopes the Faculty will honour him with their acceptance of some ancient MSS. particularly of a Cartulary of the Bishopric of Dumblane, some extracts from the Cotton Library, and others, according to a list in the hands of the Librarian.”

ELGIN.

Chartularium de Elgin. On vellum, 12mo, 73 leaves. Advocates' Library. This register of writs, relating to the house of the Predicant Friars near Elgin, consists chiefly of extracts from the more recent Chartulary of Moray. It is formally attested as a correct transcript, 1548.

GLASGOW.

1. Extracts from the Chartularies of Glasgow made in 1556. On paper, folio, pp. 54. Advocates' Library.

2. Excerpta et Exscripta ex Registris Capituli Glasguensis, 1556. Harl. MS. 4631.

3. Excerpta ex duobus libris pergameno scriptis registorum Capituli Glasguensis, A.D. 1556. Advocates' Library. Probably a transcript of the preceding.

4. The following extract from the Fifth Report of the late Deputy Clerk Register of Scotland, (Mr. Thomson), Appendix, p. 24, (General Reports by Commissioners on Public Records, 1819, I. 168), is peculiarly interesting.

“ The antient Chartularies and other Muniments of the Church of Glasgow were carried to France by Archbishop Beaton at the era of the Reformation, and were deposited in the Library of the Scots College, and in the Charter House at Paris. Of these Chartularies and Original Charters, select transcripts have been made at different times, under the direction of the Heads of the College, and presented to the City and to the University of Glasgow. At an early period of my proceedings in execution of the orders of the Board, (May 7, 1806,) ‘ for obtaining and transcribing all such Royal Charters as may be found to exist either in Public or Private Depositories, and which are not at present to be found in the Register of Charters in the General Register House,’ these authenticated extracts from the antient Chartularies of Glasgow were very liberally communicated to me by the City and the University for the use of the Record Commission, and all the Royal Charters which they contained were then copied under my direction. It was then feared that these antient Chartularies had perished in the general wreck of the property of the Scots College during the French Revolution, and that their loss had unhappily given to the copies the character and value of originals ; but it has since been ascertained, that by the patriotic and fortunate exertions of Mr. Macpherson, one of the Members of the College, the antient Chartulary, in two volumes, together with the other MSS. of value, were saved and brought into this country. Of these, a part, including the Chartulary, were for a time deposited in the custody of Mr. George Chalmers, to whose historical researches they have proved eminently subservient; and by the favour of that gentleman, prompted by his ardour and liberal zeal for the success of those measures which his Majesty's Commissioners had undertaken, these invaluable records were entrusted to my care, and at present remain in my custody.

“ Upon a careful examination it has been found that these two volumes contain various Charters and Instruments not included in the modern selections above alluded to; and, on the other hand, that these selections contain several antient Charters copied from the originals deposited in the Scots College, which had not been included in the Chartularies. I accordingly directed that the antient Chartularies should be completely transcribed in the first instance, and that such other Charters as are found only in the modern collections belonging to the City and University of Glasgow should afterwards be added. The transcript of the first and most antient volume of the Chartulary has been already completed with great care. Such parts of the second volume as are not merely duplicates of the first, are now in progress, and the whole, including these charters, of which the original are probably for ever lost, will be completed as speedily as possible.

“ Of the future destiny of these antient Chartularies I can at present say nothing. That they ought to be deposited in the Register House, or in the Advocates' Library, is abundantly manifest; and I persuade myself that the respectable person to whose interference we are indebted for their preservation, will, of his own accord, take the proper steps for saving them from all future risks. It is under that persuasion that I refrain from making any remarks on the question, to whom these records of the Archbishoprick of Glasgow do of right belong."

HOLYROOD.

Charters relating to this Abbey are to be found in Macfarlan's "Veterum Diplomatum Collectio," ii. 135, and in the collection of Father Hay, i. 257. Advocates' Library.

INCHAFFRAY.

This chartulary is at Dupplin Castle, the residence of one of those distempered individuals who can neither enjoy a thing himself, nor permit others to do so.* A transcript exists at Middle Hill, co. Worcester, the seat of Sir Thomas Phillipps, Bart.

* When the Committee of the Bannatyne Club prepared for publication Bishop Lesley's History of Scotland, the Editor of that work applied to the proprietors of the various known MSS. for the use of them, towards the purposes of collation and securing accuracy. One of these individuals was the illustrious Lord Lyon, who though a member, be it remembered, of the said Bannatyne Club, positively refused to lend the MS. preserved at Dupplin, or to permit a transcript to be made from it!! His churlish denial is too delicately noticed in the preface as "a transient inspection of the MS. having only been permitted by the present owner."

Apropos of this most distinguished successor to Sir David Lyndsay. Noble in his jejune and unsatisfactory "History of the College of Arms," congratulates the "Heralds College" (as he

KELSO.

Liber Sancte Marie de Calchou. On vellum, 8vo, 219 leaves, Advocates' Library. M. A singular specimen of the vernacular of this country, affording no very high impression of the art medical in those days, is copied from this Book of Kelso, at page xcii.

LINDORES.

Liber Sancte Marie de Londors. On paper, 12mo, 31 leaves, Advocates' Library. M.

MAY.

Some Charters relating to this cell are in the library of the Duke of Buckingham at Stowe.

MELROS.

1. Registrum Chartarum Monasterii Sancte Marie erroneously terms the Lyon Office,) on the promotion of a Peer of the Realm to the office of Lord Lyon, as "throwing a lustre upon the institution." It has done nothing of the kind, but quite the reverse. Ignorance of aught but the exaction of fees, displayed in a hundred capricious vagaries, is the ruling characteristic of the establishment; not one member of which, from the Lyon to his meanest cub, has ever produced a work or exhibited any skill in the sciences of Heraldry, Genealogy, or the cognate accomplishments.

de Melros. On vellum, folio, 119 leaves, Harl. MS. 3960.

2. Cartæ Abbatiae de Melros. On vellum, 4to, 43 leaves, Advocates' Library. M.

This, although very imperfect, is much earlier than the preceding.*

3. The greater portion of the muniments relating to Melros are in the archives of the Earl of Morton.

MORAY.

1. Chartularium Episcopatus Moraviensis Vetusius. On vellum, folio, 169 leaves. Advocates' Library. M.

2. Chartularium Episcopatus Moraviensis alterum priore recentius. On vellum, folio, 319 leaves. In the same library. M.

3. Chartularium Episcopatus Moraviensis. On paper, folio, pp. 409. A transcript of the first 123 folios of the preceding by the celebrated Thomas Ruddiman. In the same library.

4. Rentale Episcopatus Moraviensis terminorum Pentecostes et Martini in Anno Domini 1565. Magistro Archibaldo Lyndesay Camerario. On paper, small 4to, pp. 150. M.

NEWBOTTLE.

Chartularium de Neubotil. On vellum, 4to, 87

* In the Minutes of the Faculty of Advocates, July 3, 1708, it is stated that "Mr. Henry Malcolm, Minister of the Gospel, having gifted to the Faculty Library some Manuscript leaves of the Chartulary of the Abbey of Melross, the Faculty desired their Dean to thank him."

leaves Advocates' Library. A transcript is in Father Hay's Collection, Vol. I. The original was purchased by the Faculty of Advocates from James M'Ewan, bookseller in Edinburgh, in 1723, for twelve guineas.

PAISLEY.

1. Registrum Monasterii de Passelet a domo fundata 1163, usque annum 1529. On paper, folio, pp. 274. Advocates' Library. There is a transcript in Father Hay's Collection, Vol. III.

2. Rental book of the lands within the Lordship of the Abbey of Paisley, for the year 1460, and some subsequent years. On paper, folio, 202 leaves. Advocates' Library.

ST. ANDREWS.

1. Rentale Sancti Andree. On paper, large folio, pp. 394. A book of accounts of the Archbishopric of St. Andrews, from October 1539 to 1545, containing the charge and discharge of the granetar and chamberlain of the Archbishop. Advocates' Library.

2. Liber Sancti Andree et Pittenweem. On paper, large folio, 401 leaves. In the same Library.

3. Registrum Cartarum Prioratus Sancti Andree in Scotia. On vellum, small folio, 195 leaves. In the possession of Lord Panmure at Brechin Castle. M.

4. The volume in the Denmylne Collection in the Advocates' Library, No. 29, (A. 3, 34), contains a number of original charters relating to St. Andrews. M.

ST. ANTHONY'S.

The rentale buke of Sanct Anthonis and Newhaven. On vellum, 8vo, 21 leaves. A curious little record of the Abbey and Hospital of St. Anthony near Leith. Advocates' Library.

ST. GILES, (Edinburgh).

This chartulary is the property of Lord Panmure, at Brechin Castle. It is in 4to, vellum, 38 leaves.

See at page xviii, an act of the Town-Council of Edinburgh, referring to a relique of the blessed St. Giles.

SCONE.

1. The old Chartulary of Scone is a small thin folio, written on parchment, consisting of 32 leaves. It is defective in several places, and the sheets which remain have been improperly bound. It is referred to by Bishop Nicolson in his "Historical Library," published in 1702, as then belonging to the Faculty of Advocates; and by Sir James Dalrymple, in his "Historical Collections," p. 374, Edin. 1705, as also then remaining in their Library. From a marking at the commencement, it appears at one time to have formed part of the Denmylne Collection. Advocates' Library.

2. The second and more recent Chartulary is a larger folio on parchment. The MS. consists of 76 leaves, and about 50 at the end of the volume left blank. It is referred to both by Bishop Nicolson and Sir James Dalrymple, as in their time in the possession of Viscount Stormont; and it appears from a notice in the first leaf, that it was presented to the Faculty by David, 7th Viscount Stormont, in 1773. Advocates' Library. .

SOLTRE.

Chartularium domus Sancte Trinitatis nuncupatæ hospitalis de Soltre. On vellum, small folio, 24 leaves. Advocates' Library. .

STIRLING CHAPEL-ROYAL.

Registrum Capellæ Regiæ Strivelinensis. On vellum, folio, 51 leaves. Advocates' Library.

TORPHICHEN.

A volume of the Chartulary of this Preceptory of the Knights Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem is in the possession of John Black Gracie, Esq. writer to the signet, Edinburgh.

The following Chartularies, formerly known and quoted, are now amissing :—

BEAULY, (Ross-shire). This may perhaps be extant at Tarbet-House.

CROSSRAGUEL, (Ayrshire). Possibly among the archives of the Earl of Cassillis.

CULROSS, (Perthshire). The fate of this is ascertained from the following curious entry by Lord Fountainhall :—

“ January 12, 1693.—The Lady Colvil against

Mr. Matthew Fleming, for 500 merks, as the conventional price of the manuscript she lent him, being a list of all the mortifications dedicated by the Earls of Fife to the Abbacy of Culross. The Lords found this defence relevant, that Mr. Matthew produced it in process, and it was borrowed up by the deceased Lord Dirleton; and when it was sought back from him, he told it was burnt with his lodging, and so it perished casu fortuito: and ordained my Lord Newbyth, and the clerk of that process, and others, to be examined thereupon.”—DECISIONS, I. 544.

CUPAR, (Angus). All that seems to remain of this Abbacy, is preserved at p. xxv. So also of Manuel Abbey and Linlithgow Church, at pp. xl. and xlv.

FAIL, (Ayrshire). This is referred to by Mr. Gough, writing in 1780, as then existing in the library of Lord Auchinleck. If it did so at that period, it is not now to be found, or any traces of it.

KILWINNING, (Ayrshire). Quoted by Timothy Pont. Perhaps at Eglinton Castle.

KINLOSS, (Moray). A Transcript is supposed to be in the collection of the late George Chalmers, F. S. A. author of the “Caledonia,” who frequently refers to a “MS. Monasticon Scotiæ, penes me.”

Although pertaining to the sister country, the following may be noticed as existing in the Advocates’ Library :—

HOLMCULTRAM.

Excerpta de Registro Abbatiae de Holmcultran in Cumbria, cura et studio Joannis Goldij de Craigmure officialis Dumfriensis, 1748. On paper, folio, pp. 84. Advocates' Library.

This volume contains 56 charters granted by Scotsmen, or of Scottish lands. At page 51 the subsequent notanda, which may be deemed interesting, occur :—

“ The Charters written upon the fifty preceding pages were carefully copied by me, John Goldie of Craigmure, from a book written on vellum, and lent to me by my worthy friend Mr. Joseph Nicolson of Hawksdale, nephew to the Rt. Reverend William Nicolson, Bishop of Carlisle, intituled ‘ Registrum de Holm.’ The book itself is very small, contains two hundred and eighty-four pages, and for the most part is written in very fair characters. The above charters are granted by Scotsmen, or relate to lands lying in Scotland. In the beginning of the book the following notandums are written (as I believe) with Bishop Nicolson’s* own hand.

“ From a note which I met with, August 15, 1707, among Sir D. Fleming’s papers, I suppose that Mr. Tho^s. Denton, (who gave it me), had this book from Mr. Blenerhasset. (Signed) W. CARLIOL.

“ N.B.—This is not the same Register which was in my Lord William Howard's custody, as will easily appear from Monast. Angl. T. 1, p. 885.

* Vide Letters of eminent men to Ralph Thoresby, II. 222.

(Signed) W. CARLIOL.

“ There are many other Charters contained in the same Register, of lands in England, and some in Ireland, which were too tedious to transcribe, and I could get none here that could read it so distinctly as to do it for me, and, therefore, the titles of these Charters and Deeds only follow, except that when the witnesses names are insert, (which, unluckily, is but seldom), I will copy them.

(Signed) Jo. GOLDIE.”

The Constitutions of the Nunnery dedicated in honour of St. Catherine of Sienna, which formerly existed at the south side of Edinburgh, vulgarly termed “The Sciennes,” are preserved in the Library of the College of Edinburgh. It is a small 4to volume on paper.

The Manuscript in Advocates' Library, (No. 31, 3, 12,) a folio volume on paper, of the end of the 16th century—is entitled, “Rentale of Religious Houses in Scotland.”

The Harleian MS. 4623, contains the Taxt-Rolls of the following religious houses :—

Arbroath Abbey.

Aberdeen Bishopric.

Andrews St. Archbishopric.

Balmerino Abbey.

Charter House Priory.

Cupar Abbey and Lordship.
Culross Abbey.
Dryburgh Abbey.

“ Scotia Sacra, ane account of the most renowned Churches, Bishopricks, Monasteries, and other devote places, from the first introducing of Christianity into Scotland, to the disturbances occasioned in that nation by the severall reformations of religion. With a series of the severall Bishops, Abbots, Priors, and other religious governours. Written by Mr. Richard Augustine Hay, cannon regular of St. Genovefe of Paris ; Prior of St. Pierremont, &c. Tome First, 1700." Folio, Adv. Library, 34, 1.8.

The late Lieut.-Gen. Hutton formed a collection expressly for a "Monasticon Scotiæ." He was indefatigable in his researches into the ecclesiastical topography of this country. After his death, (June 1827,) his collections were purchased by the Faculty of Advocates. They are now bound in 12 vols. 4to. of which the contents are as follow :—

Vol. I. Contains matter relating to the counties of Dumfries, Kirkcudbright, and Wigton.

— II. Ayr, Renfrew, and Lanark.

— III. Peebles.

— IV. Peebles.

— V. Selkirk, Roxburgh, Berwick, Haddington, and Edinburgh.

— VII. Perth.

— VIII. Forfar.

— IX. Forfar, Kincardine, and Aberdeen.

— X. Elgin.

— XI. Inverness, Ross, and Orkney.

— XII. Miscellaneous.

Although they necessarily contain much that is heterogeneous and rubbishy, yet, when it is considered that these gatherings were made during the intervals of active duty on his Majesty's service, it is matter of admiration that they contain so much of importance. His drawings of seals and ruins were dispersed by auction.

A brief Memoir of Gen. Hutton occurs in the Gentleman's Magazine for December 1827, Vol. XCVII. Pt. II. Some interesting letters from David Erskine, Esq. to Gen. Hutton, are printed at the end of this tractate, No. I. Mr. Erskine died at Naples, 5th April 1791. See Edin. Evening Courant of May 7, same year.

Of the Carthusian Monastery at Perth, no documents are known to exist ; but an engraving of the common seal, from a drawing in the possession of Mr. Maidment, faces this page.

A list of the Bishops and Priors of St. Andrews, and also of the various religious houses then existing, is contained in a curious little miscellaneous MS. in the Library of the College at Edinburgh, apparently of the early part of the 16th century.

The second portion of this treatise refers to the use which has been made of the existing materiel.

Of printed works relating to our subject, the following is a brief, though possibly defective, summary. General Topographical publications are of course excluded.

The "Apparatus ad Historiam Scoticam, lib. ii, accessit Martyrologium Scoticum Sanctorum," of that zealous Catholic, Thomas Dempster, published at Bologna 1622, in 4to. contains a brief view of the religious establishments.

In 1631, David Camerarius published at Paris, in 4to, "De Scotorum Fortitudine, Doctrina et Pietate, ac de Ortu et Progressu Hæresis in Regnis Angliæ et Scotiæ." In this rare work he gives a brief notice of the various religious establishments in Scotland, as well as of the Scottish Monasteries in other countries.

The "Treatise of Church-lands and Tithes," by Mr. William Forbes, Advocate, printed at Edinburgh 1705, 8vo, has a summary of the Monastic Establishments interspersed in its pages. This is not merely an extremely useful, but a very pleasantly written book.

In 1734, Mr. John Spotiswood, Advocate, published at Edinburgh in 12mo, "Notes on Hope's Minor Practicks, and an Account of all the Religious Houses in Scotland at the Reformation." The portion relating to the Religious Houses was reprinted at the end of Bishop Keith's "Historical Catalogue of the Scottish Bishops, down to the year 1688." Edinburgh: 1755, 4to. and also in the new edition of Keith's work, edited by Dr. Russell, (the present Bishop of Glasgow), Edinburgh: 1824, 8vo. This work of Spotiswood is the basis of all ordinary writers on Scottish Monastic Antiquities:—

In Fordun's "Scoticronicon Abreviatio," ed. Goodal, II. 538: Edinburgh, 1759, folio, is a "Tabula Monasteriorum Scotiæ."

In the second vol. of Gough's Topography, p. 607, is a general view of the various Chartularies and Religious Houses, chiefly taken from the MSS. of Father Hay.

In the Introduction to Part I. of the "Picturesque Antiquities of Scotland, etched by Adam de Cardonnell:" London. 1788, 8vo and 4to, there is a very complete classified list of the Religious Houses formerly existing in Scotland.

In the Edinburgh Magazine for June 1808, is a "List of the Religious Foundations in Scotland," by the Earl of Buchan, pp. 2.

In 1809, Mr. now Sir John Graham Dalyell, Kt. and Bart. published "A Tract, chiefly relating to Monastic Antiquities, with some account of a recent search for the Remains of the Scottish Kings interred in the Abbey of Dunfermline." Edinburgh: 1809, 8vo, pp. 73. With an engraved specimen of the Chartulary of Dunfermline, as frontispiece, and plate of the Seal of the Regality of the Abbey of Dunfermline, at page 72.

"Notes, Historical and Descriptive, on the Priory of Inchmahome; with Introductory Verses, and an Appendix of Original Papers. Edinburgh: Printed by James Ballantyne & Co. for William Blackwood, South Bridge Street; and John Murray, Albemarle Street, London, 1815." 4to. (By the Rev. William Macgregor Stirling, Minister of Port of Monteath.)

In 1820 Mr. Graham Dalyell printed "Remarks on the Antiquities illustrated by the Chartularies of the Episcopal See of Aberdeen." Edin. 1820, 8vo, pp. 52. Illustrated with a Frontispiece, containing a specimen of the larger chartulary, and an initial letter (C) from the smaller chartulary.

In 1836, the same gentleman printed "A Brief Analysis of the Ancient Records of the Bishopric of Moray." Edin. 1826, 8vo, pp. 82: with a Frontispiece, containing specimens of the ancient chartulary of Moray.

These were succeeded, in 1828, by "A Brief Analysis of the Chartularies of the Abbey of Cambus-kenneth, Chapel-Royal of Stirling, and Preceptory of St. Anthony at Leith." Edin. 1828, 8vo, pp. 92. With an illuminated Frontispiece of the Royal Arms of Scotland, from the chartulary of the first mentioned religious house.

As a very limited impression of this and the other three parts was made, they are now individually scarce, and collectively extremely rare.

In 1828, Mr. Maidment printed "Templaria. Papers relative to the History, Privileges, and Possessions of the Scottish Knights Templar, and their successors the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem." In two parts, small 4to. The impression of each restricted to twenty-five copies; and as these were printed in small fasciculi—some in single leaves—the work is seldom found complete, and consequently ranks among the very scarcest of Scottish privately printed volumes. The following collation of a perfect copy may be useful:—

Part I. Information for Ross of Auchlossin, pp. 11.—Information for John Lord Torphichen, pp. 8.

Part II. Charter by King James IV. pp. 8.—Account of the Templars, pp. 10.—Letters of Replegiation by James Lord Torphichen, pp. 2.—Claim for James Lord Torphichen, pp. 12.—Chartæ Magistri Hospitalis S. Jo. Hierios. Digneto Scott, pp. 2.—Commission by James, the first Lord Torphichen, to Robert Lyndsay of Dunrod, pp. 2.—Thomas Lord Binning his Instrument of Resignation, pp. 4.—Proceedings in the Claim for John Hamilton, Advocate, pp. 10.

As connected with the History of the Scottish Templars, Mr. Gracie, W. S. Superior of all the Temple lands in Scotland, printed, in 1830, "Notes of Charters, &c., by the Right Honourable Thomas Earl of Melrose, afterwards Earl of Haddington, to the Vassals of the Barony of Drem. From 1615 to 1627," pp. 12. And, in the same year, "Abstract of the Charters and other Papers recorded in the Chartulary of Torphichen, from 1581 to 1596," pp. 55;—both in small 4to. Of these very valuable little tracts only thirty-five copies were printed, and they rank nearly in the same degree of rarity with the "Templaria" of Mr. Maidment.

The Charters of Coldingham have been printed in the Rev. J. Raine's History of North Durham, Part I. London, 1830, folio.

In 1831, the late Mr. John Dillon commenced to print some collections relative to the Cathedral Church of Glasgow. These he was compelled by declining health to relinquish. After his death, the sheets already thrown off were distributed among the members of the Maitland Club, in 1840. They contain an Inventory of the Ornaments, Reliques, Jewels, Vestments, Books, &c. belonging to the Cathedral in 1432, with observations on the Catalogue of Books, and extend to thirty-one pages. This Catalogue of Books and relative observations had previously been communicated by Mr. Dillon to the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland, and they are printed in Vol. II of their Transactions, p. 328. Mr. Dillon has made much melancholy blundering, especially in the book department; but the whole will be found correctly printed, and carefully elaborated, in the forthcoming publication of the Chartulary of Glasgow by Mr. Innes.

The Monastic Annals of Teviotdale: or the History and Antiquities of the Abbeys of Jedburgh, Kelso, Melrose, and Dryburgh. By the Rev. James Morton, B. D. This volume, edited by Cosmo Innes, Esq. was printed at the expense of the Earl of Glasgow, and presented by his Lordship, as his first contribution, to the Maitland Club.

In the second volume of the "Miscellany of the Bannatyne Club," edited by David Laing, Esq. Edin. 1836. 4to. the following interesting articles relating to the Abbey of Holyrood are to be found at page 9:—

"Historia Miraculose Foundationis Monasterii Sancte Crucis prope Edinburgh, [1128.]—Historia Funda-

This magnificent work, illustrated with 27 plates of seals and facsimiles, was presented by the Duke of Buccleugh and Queensberry to the Bannatyne Club. It was edited by Mr. Innes, to whose taste and accuracy in the publication of this and other chartularies, the antiquary and historian are alike indebted. There are copies on large paper.

in topographical research. There are large paper copies.

Printed at the expense of the members of the Abbotsford Club, and edited by James Maidment, Esq. The Sisters of "The Sciennes" were Dominicans; and of the representation of one of these worthy ladies, as given by Wolfius in his "Lectiones Antiquæ," and copied in the Constitutions of the Nunnery above mentioned, an example is here given.

The Chartularies of Balmerino and Lindores, now first printed from the Original MSS. in the Library of the Faculty of Advocates. Edinburgh, printed for the Abbotsford Club, MDCCCXLI. 4to.

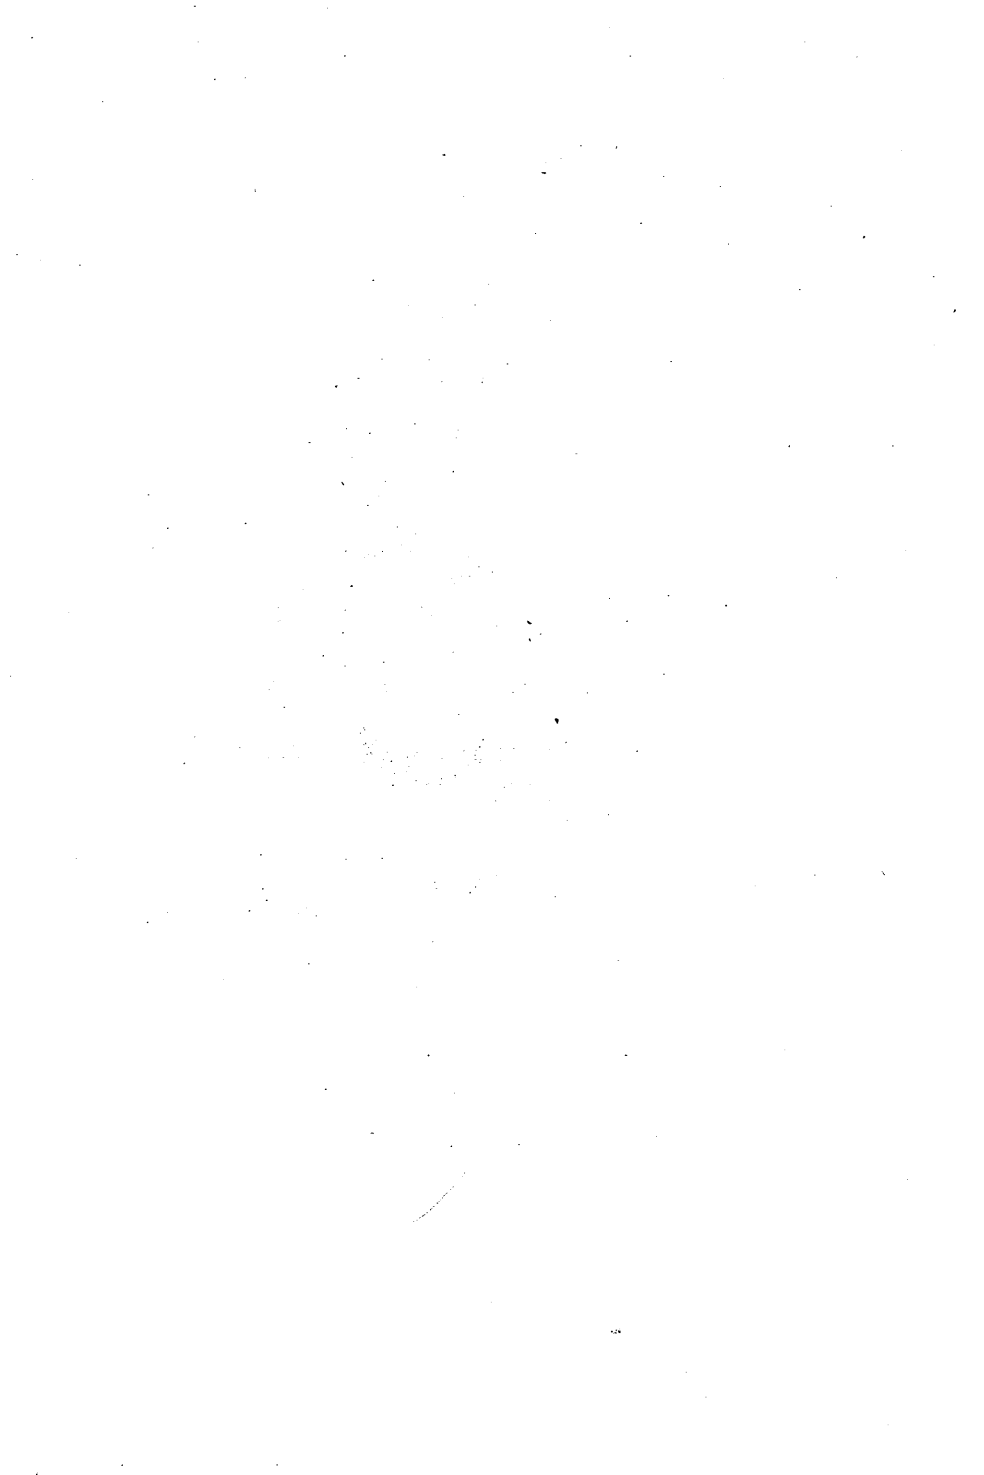

This volume, edited by the former Secretary of the Club, Mr. Turnbull, is divided in two parts. 1. Liber Sancte Marie de Balmerinach, pp. 87, including Appendix and Indices, Introduction, pp. xii. Tabula, pp. iii. Two plates of Seals and ground plan of the Abbey. 2. Liber Sancte Marie de Lundoris, pp. 55, including Appendix and Indices, Introduction pp. xi. Tabula, pp. 2. Two plates of Seals. Copies of these Seals are given in the present tractate.

Gentle Reader, behold the Abbey of Balmerino, as represented in that singular Map of Scotland, contained in the MS. of Hardyng's Chronicle in the Bodleian Library, (Arch. Seld. B. 26,) and engraved by Gough, in his "Anecdotes of British Topography," Vol. II.

SEALS.

The Bannatyne Club possesses a collection of admirably executed drawings of Scottish Monastic Seals, made by Howlett of London for the late John Caley, Esq. of the Augmentation Office, one of the editors of the magnificent new edition of Dodsworth and Dugdale's Monasticon Anglicanum. After Mr. Caley's death these drawings were purchased by Mr. Thorpe, the eminent bookseller, from whom they were acquired by the Bannatynians.

Mr. Maidment has, among his curious and rare accumulations, a drawing of the Seal of the Carthusian Monastery at Perth, of which, it would appear, no impressions are now known to be in existence. This he has kindly permitted to be lithographed, for the illustration of this tractate. See page 20.

Fine casts, in sulphur or wax, of such seals as are still to be found, can be procured from Mr. Doubleday of London, and Mr. H. Laing, Elder Street, Edinburgh.

Mr. Innes informs me, that he has recently discovered the original matrices of the following Scottish Cenobitical and Episcopal Seals, in the possession of Mr. Thomas, a merchant of London :—

Caithness.

Dunkeld. (Seal of Cause.)

Kinloss.

Newbottle.

Orkney. (Bishop Honeyman's.)

Pluscardine.

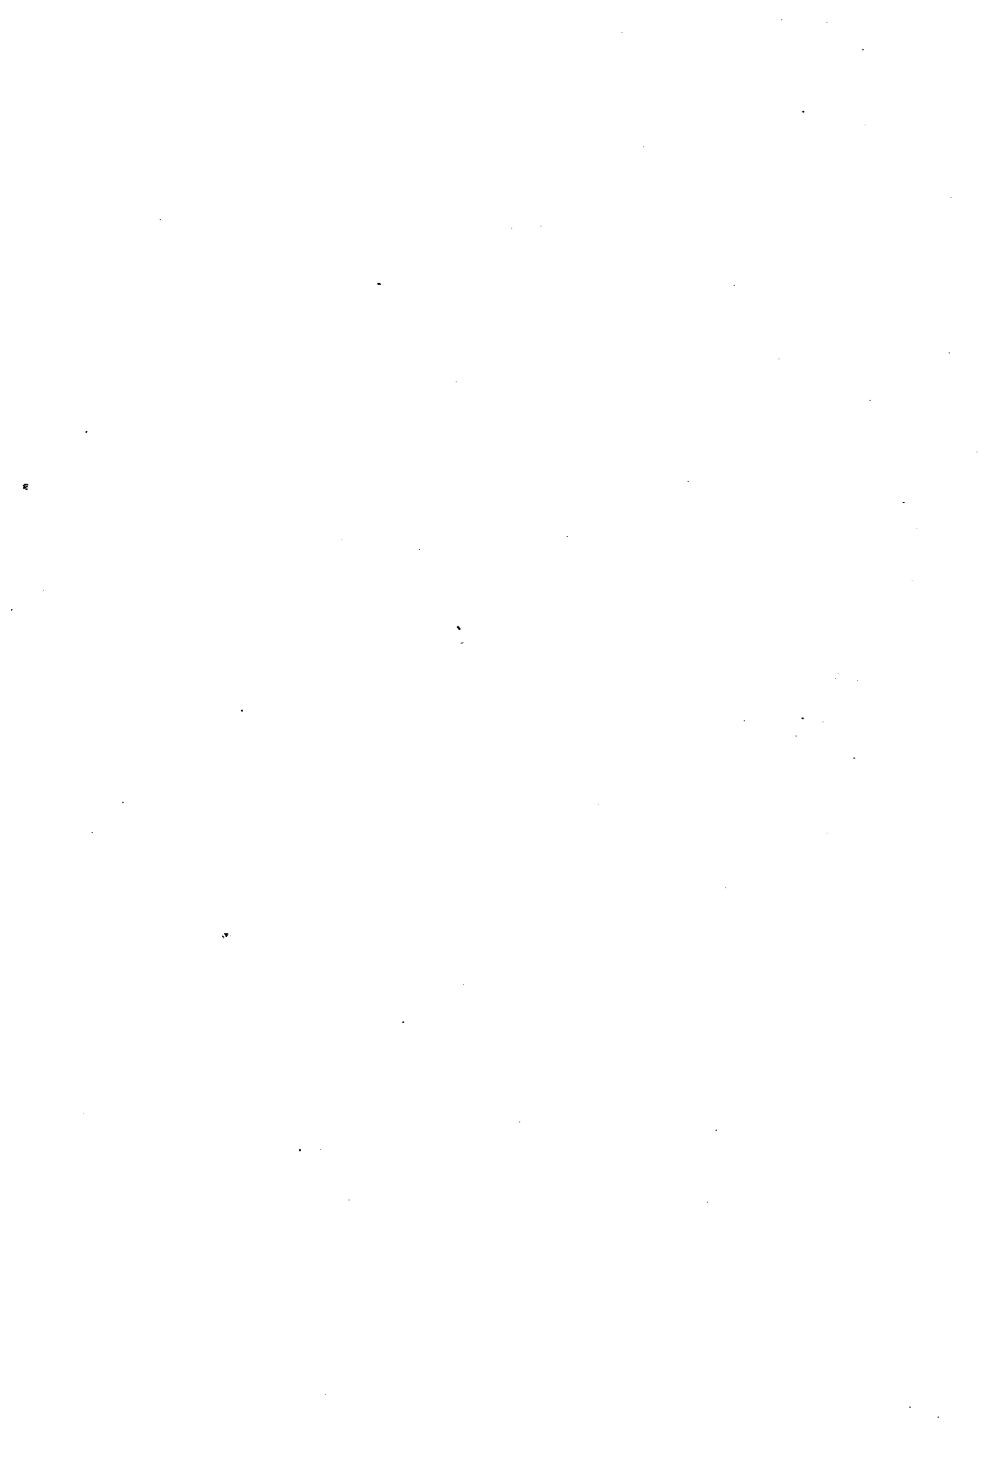

St. Anthony of Leith.

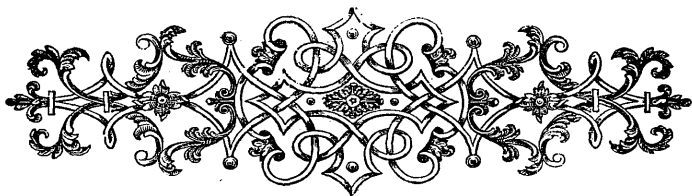

St. Colmoc.

Of this latter seal it may be observed that it has been engraved on wood in the 31st number of that very instructive periodical the Irish Penny Journal, (vol. I, p. 245,) and illustrated, but erroneously, by Mr. Petrie, who seems to consider that it belonged to the Monastery of Inchcolm, in the Frith of Forth : while in reality it is that of Inchmahome, in Monteith. It had been previously engraved in Mr. Macgregor Stirling's book referred to at p. 22, supra.

LETTERS FROM DAVID ERSKINE, ESQ. W. S. TO CAPTAIN

1.

Fleurs, 4th May 1789.

SOME time ago I had the pleasure of your's of the 6th ult. accompanying a letter from Lord Buchan.

It would give me much pleasure to contribute to your collection of Scots conventual seals, which I believe might be rendered nearly complete, with no great trouble, by a person residing in Edinburgh, who had access to the professional men of the law, and to the collections in the Advocates' Library. In the way of business, many seals, I mean impressions, of the different religious houses in Scotland, are from time to time in my possession. But though I might venture to allow them to be copied by any person known to me by character in Edinburgh, yet I could not, without a breach of trust to my employers, send them to any distance. If you know anybody in Edinburgh who can accurately draw from a seal, I shall be obliged to you for your information, as there are many seals of which I would wish to preserve drawings, before I return them to their owners.

* Mr. Erskine, the author of these letters, was a member of the Society of Writers to his Majesty's Signet, and highly distinguished in the profession by his skill in conveyancing, and intimate acquaintance with the history and practice of the feudal law. His talents and probity secured for him the agency of many of the nobility and principal commoners of Scotland.

In the records of the city of Edinburgh, much information is to be found with regard to the religious houses in its neighbourhood, the greater part of them having at the Reformation been granted to the city. I believe the records and charters belonging to the city are in good order, and are accurately inventoried.

Along with this, I send a lease by the Commendator of Dryburgh, of some lands near the Abbey, and a gift of pension by the Commendator of Inchmahomo or St. Colmocs, to an organist. The seals of both, though very rude, are in pretty good preservation; and that of the latter is seldom to be met with. Probably, while you have been in this neighbourhood, you may have seen much better impressions of the former. They are both intended for Lord Buchan, so you will be kind enough to forward them to him at your convenience, with my best respects.

I leave this for Edinburgh to-morrow, regretting that my time did not permit me to call upon you. I am, with regard, &c.

Edinburgh, 5th September 1789.

I have before me your letters of the 11th May and 27th and 30th August. Absence from town, and other circumstances, have prevented an earlier answer.

I do not believe the Duke of Roxburgh is possessed of any chartulary of a religious house, nor do I think he has any writs concerning the Priory of Canonby. If the register of that priory is extant, it will probably be in the hands of the Duke of Buccleugh. I know nothing of its history but what is to be found in print.

Insula S^{ti} Colmoci, Inchmahomoc, and Inchmahomo, are undoubtedly the same,—the former being a Latin translation of the Gaelic of the two latter. I am possessed of an old paper, entitled “The double of the apointment betwix the Bishop of Dunblain and the Pryor of Inchmahomo. Drawine out of the Auld Register.” It is a sentence pronounced by W^m. and Galfrid, Bishops of Glasgow and Dunkeld, commissioners appointed by Pope Gregory for settling some matters concerning the Bishoprick of Dunblane, and is dated “in consilio apud Perth A. G. 1238, in octabus S^{ti} Joannis Baptistæ.” It has the following clause:—“Ordinavimus etiam quod licitum sit dicto comiti [Waltero Cumyng comiti de Menteath] et successoribus suis domum virorum religiosorum ordinis S^{ti} Augustini in Insula de Inchmaquhomok construere sine impedimento vel contradictione dicti Episcopi [Dunblanensis] vel successorum suorum." Hence it is clear that Walter Cumyng, Earl of Menteath, was the founder of this Priory; and there are two monuments of a man and woman in the ruins of the Priory, which are probably the Earl and his wife.* But this may be easily known, as there are arms on both. I do not believe the titles of this Priory, or any Chartulary of it, are extant.

I can give you no information about the Priors of Lochtay and Strathfillan. I believe both now belong to the family of Breadalbane.

The Priory of Restennet in Angus being a cell of Jedburgh, was founded by David Bishop of St. Andrews; who, by a charter In vigilia S^{ti} Bartholomei Apostoli 1242, grants to the Abbot and Canons of Jedburgh the church of Restennet, with the chapel of Forfar, and liberty of placing a prior and friars there, and of removing them. I have seen a transcript of the charter in the hands of the Earl of Strathmore. In 6th Sept^r 1330, Ja^s Bishop of St. Andrews granted to John de Eskdale, Prior of Restennet, and his successors, the lands of Rostcolby (now Roscoby) in Angus. This Priory was granted to the ancestor of the Earl of Kelly, from whom it has come to the Earl of Strathmore.

Frater Henricus Cant gardianus loci fratrum minorum burgi de Roxburgh, cum consensu suorum fratrum subscript, vizt. Fratris Joh^s Fergussonne provincialis fratrum minorum in regno Scocie ac gardiani loci fratrum minorum de Dundee, Fratris Caroli

* This monument has been engraved in the late Mr. Macgregor Stirling's "Notes, Historical and Descriptive, on the Priory of Inchmahome," Plate II.

Home gard. loc. fratr. min. de Dumfries, fratris Johs Cant gard. loc. fratr. min. de Kirkcudbright, et fratris Marci Fluccar gard. loc. fratr. de Innerkething, grants to Walter Ker of Cessfurd, knight, the lands belonging to that place, 18th Dec. 1564. This I presume is what is now called the Friers, at the junction of the Tweed and Teviot. I know nothing of the founder, nor of the Red friars or College which you mention.

I can give you no information about the Priory of Blantyre, nor is any to be found in Lord Blantyre's custody. Though an ancient, it was a very inconsiderable house.

There was a Collegiate Church at Abernethy, of which I see Wm. Schaw was Provost in 1554. I suppose Mr. Douglas of Douglas has the writs.

The representative of Seaforth is Humbertstone Mackenzie, Esq. M. P.*

The agent for Dundas of Dundas is Mr. John Dundas, writer to the signet.

I dare say I have now made you weary of me. And I am, &c.

P.S.—If you had any intention of engraving the monastic seals of Scotland, and if you had an engraver here, I dare say I might be able to furnish him with some, Culross, Dryburgh, Cambuskenneth, Blantyre, &c.

* Subsequently created a British Peer by the title of Lord Seaforth. Dying without male issue, in 1814, the barony became extinct, and his estates, by virtue of an entail, fell to his daughter.

Edinburgh, 14th October 1789.

I have the pleasure of both your's of the 8th ult. and 12th inst.

In the agreement between Walter Cumyng, Earl of Menteath, and the Bishop of Dunblane, the name of the Prior of Inchmahomo is not mentioned. Indeed, it is probable he was not then appointed.

The date of the grant by Henry Cant, 18th December 1564, must be right, as I have two notes of it taken at different times, which agree. No lands, so far as I recollect, are particularised. The grant mentions in general the particates of land, roods, fishings, &c. about Roxburgh, which belonged to the Friars of Roxburgh.

To enable you to clear up your difficulties as to Restennot, I herewith send four copies I took this summer of original writs of that Priory, which I beg you will return, as I have no duplicate of them. I prefer the authority of these writings to Lord Arbuthnot's, because the monks never would have forged deeds to decrease the antiquity of their Priory,—at the sametime, the papers sent are not conclusive.

I think I took William Schaw's name from a grant made by him of some lands near to the Bridge of Earn.

Robert III, by a charter dated at Scone, 9th May, a. r. I. with consent of the Bishop of St. Andrews (Walter), grants to the Monastery of Dryburgh, Ord.

Præmonstrat. the whole lands, rents, and others which belonged to the Nunnery of South Berwick, a Priory of the Cistercian order of the diocese of St. Andrews. One of the reasons of the dissolution is stated to be “Moniales ejusdem abjecto continenciæ freno lubricis actibus insolenciis et dissolutionibus indulgere ipsasque ad numerum modicum duarum fore redactas.” The grant also is intended “ad re-edificacionem monasterii hostili incendio dudum consumpti.” This may serve to fix the æra of the present Monastery of Dryburgh. It would appear too, that the Nunnery had been burnt down. This grant is confirmed by Walterus de Haliburton, Dñs ejusd. et de Drylton, 30th October 1410. One of the witnesses is Dñs Thōas de Alton, magister de Soltre.

I suppose David I. was the founder of the Nunnery, for I have seen a charter by Edward III. a. r. 10^{mo}, confirming to the Prioress and Nuns of Berwick-upon-Tweed, 40 merks yearly payable out of that town, which had been granted to them by David of Scotland, and confirmed to them by Edward, King of England.

I know nothing of the Maison-dieus of Roxburgh and Jedburgh, further than that Walter Ker of Cessfurd had a grant of their patronages as far back as Aug^t. 1488.

Malcolm Earl of Fife, “pro salute aīe Wil^{mi}. Regis Scotie, et pro salute aīe et prosperitate Alex^{ri}. Regis Scotie,” &c. Grants “Deo et be. Marie et be. Servans de Culenross et monachis Cister. ord. ad fundacionem abbacie sue nove Totam terram Schyre de Culenross per rectas divisas suas cum ecclia et cas- tello, &c. Tenend. in liberum forestum. Testibus Laurencio filio Osney, Nesio de Ramesay, Mağro Petro filio ejus, Wilmo de Valloniis, Hugo de Abernethi.”—No date. This charter is confirmed by Robert I. apud Sconam 5^{to} Dec^{ris} a. r. 13^{mo}. This last is in my hands.

I have an agreement between the Abbot and monks of Cullenros and the Prioress and nuns of Northberwyk, anno 1288. No names of Abbot or Prioress; and I have a similar one, anno 1237, infra octabus Apostolorum Petri et Pauli.

Robert is Commendator of Inchmahomo, Sept. 1531. John, the son of John Lord Erskine, is Commendator there, 16th August 1552. Pope Paul IV. nominated David Erskine Abbot of Inchmahomo, 4^o Ides of January 1555. He takes possession 5th Dec. 1556.

Hugh Lord Sommervill is patron of the Prebendary and Chaplainry of the blessed Virgin founded in the Isle of Carnwath, and presents Hugh Sommervill thereto, 20th June 1573.

The notes in the two last paragraphs are taken from the Mar writings.

I send a tack, 1557, by Thomas Abbot of Halywood, (Sancti Nemoris,) on account of the very singular seal. Be so good as return it with the Res-tennot papers.

I have seen the house or Ministry of Fail. It is on the side of a lake or morass, and I presume Loch Feal, Feal, and Fealford are synonymous. I have not seen any writings concerning it, though I shall probably soon have an opportunity.

In the Great Seal Record there are two Charters of Confirmation by the King to the Nunnery of Haddington, of all their rights in 1458. It was given about 150 years ago to the Lauderdale family. It now belongs to Lord Blantyre.

I am much obliged to you for your offer. At present it is not in my power to avail myself of it. But should you remain another year in this country, I flatter myself I might derive some advantage from it.—I am, &c.

Edinburgh, 9th December 1789.

I have just now before me a transumpt by the Magistrates of Edinburgh, 11th October 1486, of two several Charters. The one by Allan Earl of Menteth to Wm. de Rusky, of the lands of Rusky, without date. “Testibus Dño Christino priore de Insula S^{ti} Colmoci, Dño Malcomo de Innerpeffri milite, Wil^{mo} de Montefixo, Joñne de Lany.” The other by Mordac Earl of Menteth, fil. Dñi Alex^{ri} Comitis quond. de Menteth, to Sir Walter de Menteth, son of Sir John de Menteth, of the lands of Thom or Thorn, in Menteth, without date. Witnesses, “Dñis Joñe de Menteth, Malisio de Stratherne, W^{mo} de Montefixo, militibus. Dño Christino priore de Insula S^{ti} Colmoci, Alex^{ro} de Menteth, Gilberto de Drummond, Malcolmo de Drummond.” These are the oldest documents I remember to have seen of the Priors of Inchmahomo, (Ragman roll excepted.)

I suspect you are mistaken in supposing Polmadie near Rutherglen to have been an Hospital. It unquestionably belonged to the collegiate church of Dumbarton, and the superiority of the lands of Polmadie still belongs to the Duke of Montrose, as lay patron of that collegiate church.

I meant to have sent you some conventual seals this week, but I have not had it in my power to look them out.—I am, &c.

Edinburgh, 23d December 1789.

Along with this I send Charter by Alex^r. Commendator of Culross in 1575, with a tolerable impression of the seal; Charter by Adam Commendator of Cambuskenneth in 1567;—Seal somewhat defaced, but I have no better impression by me; Charter by James abbot of Newbottle in 1550, with the seal pretty well preserved; and another seal of Mark Commendator of Newbottle, about 1580. From which two last you will be able to complete the Newbottle seal. I also send a charter by John Lord Halyburton, and Christian de Vallibus, his wife, with her seal, which is very singular, as it represents her with her husband's bearing in one hand and her own in the other. I shall be obliged to you to return the charters at your convenience. I have no desire for the seal of Mark of Newbottle, if it can be of any use to you. If I had a day's leisure, I could send you many more conventual seals. I hope to do it before the middle of next month.

The collegiate church of Dumbarton was founded by Isabella Duchess of Albany, whom you mention. So your conjecture as to the hospital may be right. I have at present no materials about this collegiate church.

I know nothing at all of Roseneath or Luffness. I do not recollect ever to have seen any writings about the former, and I have kept no notes as to the latter. Luffness now belongs either to Lord Portmore or to the Honourable Charles Hope.

I have every reason to believe that there is no chartulary of Inchmahomo at Alloa, having examined all the papers there several years ago.

The monastery and nunnery of Haddington were on the opposite sides of the River Tyne. The nunnery was near half a mile below the monastery.

Next week I expect to be able to send you an inaccurate copy of the chartulary of the Priory of St. Andrews, with a very correct abstract of the chartulary of Pasley.

I cannot decypher the legend of the Dundee seal. I know little of any of the houses in that neighbourhood. Nor am I acquainted with Jedburgh. It was erected in favour of the Home family ; but they got none of the old writings.

I have hopes of sending you soon some very beautiful conventual seals. If I succeed, there is one of which I shall beg the favour of a drawing from you.

Have you the seals of the Bishops and their Chapters ? or do you wish to have them ?—I always am, &c.

Edinburgh, 31st December 1789.

I have time only to inform you, that yesterday by Kirkpatrick the Kelso carrier, I sent you a parcel containing extracts from the chartulary of Paisley, copied accurately from the original; and to the best of my recollection, compared by myself. Also copy of the very curious chartulary of the Priory of St. Andrews. This however is copied by an illiterate inaccurate lad from a copy, so it must be very incorrect.—I am, &c.

7.

Edinburgh, 27th March 1790.

I have the pleasure of your's of the 25th instant, and I also received your's of the 10th January, accompanying the charters I had formerly sent you.

You are welcome to keep for some weeks longer the Chartularies of Paisley, and of the Priory of St. Andrews. When you return them I hope to be able to send you copies either of the Cambuskenneth or Inchaffray Chartularies; both of which contain many curious particulars.

I am much obliged to you for the kind offers you make me. I shall thank you for an excerpt from the inventory of charters of whatever relates to the Stuarts of Galstoun, Castletoun, Castlemilk, Cambusnethan or Finnart-Stuart; also a copy of the charter by the Earl Marischal to the Carmelites of Innerbervie 1443, and of the titles of the other papers from the Marischal College. At present I shall trouble you for nothing further.

By next week, or the week thereafter, I hope to send you a deed by the Nunnery of Haddington, with a pretty good impression of the seal, which is the only one I have seen ; also some other conventual and episcopal seals, particularly one of the Archbishoprick of St. Andrews, when Cardinal Beaton was in that see, if you have it not already.

I saw an engraving of the College of Abernethy's seal some time ago, in the Gentleman's Magazine. I suppose it is the same you mention, as it was said to have been sent from Ireland, and has on one side the arms of the Abernethys.

I know nothing of the Prior of Oxenfoord. If it is not a mistake in the transcribing, (which is extremely probable,) he may perhaps have been an English Prior.

I have now before me a deed 20th Jan^{ry} 1539, by John Lauder, "ecclesiæ Glasgueñ intra partes Tevidaliæ Archidiaconus," John Coldane, Provost of Methven, and W^m. Gibson, Dean of Restalrig. I always am, &c.

Edinburgh, 12th April 1790.

I had sometime ago the pleasure of your's of the 1st inst. with a copy of the indenture between W^m. Keith, Marischal of Scotland, and the Carmelites of Inverbervie, for which be so good as accept my best thanks.

I see from the extracts you send me, that the inventory of Charters, &c. which you have, is a copy of Mr. Rob^t. Mill's inventory in my possession, so that you need not give yourself the trouble to send me any further extracts from it.

The greatest part of the Barony of Beath in Fife, belonged to the Abbacy or Priory of Inchcolm, an Island in the Frith of Forth, and now belongs to the Earl of Moray, as Lord of Erection of that Abbacy; so that I am perfectly clear that Robert Steuart, who grants the charter of part of Beath to James Steuart, in 1543, was Abbot of Inchcolm, not of Icolmkill. You will see some account of this Abbacy in Sibbald's History of Fife, p. 40.

This day I have the pleasure of your's of the 11th, returning the chartularies of Paisley and St. Andrews, accompanied with sundry other papers, which I have not yet had an opportunity of looking into, but which I shall examine and return probably next week. In the meantime I with pleasure accept of the extracts from the inventory of writs belonging to the Marischal College of Aberdeen.

Along with this I send you the chartulary of Cambuskenneth, copied from the original transumpt on vellum, of the whole writings of that abbacy, made by Fouldis the Clerk Register; which circumstance will enable you to understand the verses subjoined to the chartulary. You may return it with your convenience, and be so good as write me when it comes to your hand.—I am, &c.

Peggy's Mill, near Edinburgh, 16th July, 1790.

I ought long ago to have acknowledged the receipt of the chartulary of Cambuskenneth, which reached me very safe two or three days after you left Scotland. But having been attacked last winter by some complaints in my breast, I have been obliged to retire to country quarters, where I must not write, or indeed attend to any business. This day I go to the northward for some weeks, but still any letters directed for me at Edinburgh will find their way to me.

I have in Edinburgh copies of some papers belonging to you, which shall be disposed of in any way you shall direct; and when you return to Scotland, you shall be most welcome to complete your extracts from the chartulary of Cambuskenneth, and I shall then have it in my power to furnish you with some conventual seals.

I am much indebted to you for your obliging offers, and shall take the liberty of using them when opportunity offers. In the mean time, if it is not too much trouble, I would wish for copies of the following writs of the Marischal College, mentioned in your's of the 10th, (for your former list is in Edinburgh,)—B. 16, No. 9, Decr^m annui redditus, &c.—B. 18, N. 3, Confirmation, &c. I suppose the granter of the charter, B. 16, No. 8, is Pingle, not Pringle, Perhaps Phil. de Barbour, B. 19, No. 3, may have been the nephew of John Barbour, Archdean of Aberdeen, Robert Bruce's poet and historian.

Part of the Melrose charters was purchased by Lord Oxford from Mr. Anderson, (the collector of the Diplomata,) who is supposed to have got them from the families of Hadinton or Buccleugh. Perhaps Mr. Astle may now be possessed of them.

I do not recollect the anecdote you mention about Queen Mary's being carried to Inchmahomo. No place could be less exposed to the English fleet.

I have some singular seals, which on your return I hope to have it in my power to communicate.

I most sincerely congratulate you on your preferment,* and am with truth, &c.†

ANE TRETYSSE AGAYNE THE PESTILENS.

[EX REGISTRO CENOBII KALCHOENSIS. MS. ADV. BIBL.]

HER begynnys a nobyl tretysse made of a gud phisician, John of Burdouse, for medecine agayne the pestilens iwyll, and it is departyt in iiij parts. The first tellis how a man sal kepe hym in tyme of pestilens, that he fall nocht into the iwyll; the second chapeter tell how this sekenis comys; the iij chapeter tell medecine agayne this jewyll; the ferde tellys how he sal be kept.

The clerk says in fyrst chapeter that for defaut of gud rewlynd and dyetyng in mete and drynk men fallys off in sekness; tharfor qwhen the pestilens reynes in the contrey, men that will be kept fra the iwyl hym nedys to kep hym fra al outrage and excess in mete and drink, na oyse na bathys, na swete nocht mykyll, for all is opyn the porys of the body, and maks the venomouse ayr to anter, and destroys the lyfly sprets and infeblys the body, and sowerandly hawntyng of lychery, for that bath infeblys the kynde and opynnys the pors, that wekyt ayr may enter and invenomouse the sprets of the man.

Als oys lytyll that tym froyt, and et lytell or nocht of salmonys, garlek, or ony slyk mets that bryngs a man to unkyndlyk. Also sofer nocht gretly thurst that tym, and gyf thu thrysts gretly, drynk bot mesurabyll to slokyn the thurst and the hete, and a best drink war calde water mengyt with venegyr de tysene for that maner drynk is rycht gud, namly to them that ar coleric of complexion for thai are hate and dry, and commonly lene of body.

The secunde chapter tellis how this seknes cummys and qwhat is the cause thereof. In man ar iij principal parts and members, the hart, the lever, and the harnys, and ilk ane of thir has his clengyng plas quhar he may out his superfluites and clengs him. The hart has his clenging plas under the armys, that is in in the hol of the oxster ; the clenging plas of the levir is betuix the the and the body in the holis ; but the clenging plas of the harnys are under the eis or under the throte. Than this ewill comyss thus, qwen the porrys ar opyn for swm cause befor sayd, the air venoims enteyrs and alson menges the mannys blude, and sa rynnys to the hart that is gude and ruth of lyf, and distroyes the kynd of man and slayis him; the hart fleis kindly the tyngs that is aganyis it, and puts the venome to his clenging plas, and for that plas is stoppit that it may not out, it passes to the principale party nest, that is the levir, for to destroy it, and on the samyn wyse put it till his clenging plas, and for that alsua is sparyt it may not out, bot passis to iij principal party, that is the harnys, and he puts it till his clenging plas, and yhit it may not out there, and thus a lang tyme it is mowand or it rest in any plas xii ours or mar, and than at the last within xxiiij houris, gif if it be not passand out with bledyng, it festyngs in some plas and casts a man into the agu, and maks a byl or a bolg in som part of the iij clenging plasis befor said, or else ner thaim.

The thryd chapter tellys help again this iwil and qwhen it may be wel helpit with latyng of blude. Qwa felys ony preking of blude or flecryng, it is taknyng toward theseknes, therefor thai suld bled son, gif it may be in the first our or within vj ours efter, or gif it may not be zhit, than drink not, no et not; or it be, and tary not ovir the twell ours, for all that tyme the meter is mowand for cause befor sayd, and certainly bledyng betymis of the vanys that I sal tell, sal haf it away; bot if ye pass xxiiij ours, the mater is gaderyt and hardnyd, and will not out of the vayn gif it be strykyn. Nevir the les if a man bled, it dois no harme, bot it is not sekyr that it may help. If the mater be gaderit under othyr the armehole it cumneys of the hart, and than bled of the hart weyn that is called the cordyak, and on the samyn side that the iwil is in, or else is there ij harmys; ane is gif ye blede on the tother syde the gude blood it clenges the syde not corrupyt, na venome sal be drawin out out of the vayne, iwil sal dwel fast, and the body is the fouylar for fault of gud blud that wald haf the kind; the second harme is mar, for than the blud that is envenamit sall pass outerward the yhart and venoume it, and hast a man to his endyng.

Gif the seknes be betwex the the and the body, it is of the levir, and than gif the water aper in the ourinar syde besyde the prive tyngs, blede of the fute on the samyn syde, that is of wayn betwex the the meltha and the tother than nest it; for gif the byll be ther and ye blede of the arme, the mater will draw up agayn to the principal party of the hart or of the liver, and do harme. Als if the mater be mar outward to the syde and ferrer fra the prive tings, bled of the vayn betwex ankleth and the hole, or on the vayn that is ewin under the ankleth that is called the sophene, or ell be the ventosyd on the the with a boist or a horne besyde the byle; and gif the mater aper in the clenging plas of the hede fra the harnys, blede of the hede vayn of the samyn arme that is called Cephalica, that lyes nest abowin the hart vayn that is called the Cordyak in the bouat of the arme, or ell bled of vayn that is abofe the hand between the thom and the next fynger, or ell be ventosyt betwex the schulder with boystis.

Fra the blud be drawin out and the principal members thus cleyngit, the hart suld be comfurdyd be cauld electuary to tempyr the gret hete therof; syn it war gud to haf water stillit of thir iiij herbys, that is, to wit, Dytane, Pynpnole, turmetyn and scabius, and this is gud medicyne in this seknes; and als he suld kepe hym wele fra hete, for qwen a man is in this seknes he suld be dyattyd mesurably, for the fever ever mar is with the seknes, and qwil a man is in the fevir agu he suld et na flesch bot lytyl chekynis sodyn in clare water, or ell fresch fysch, or other small fysch fresch rostyd, to ete with vineger.

Als than it is gude to ete potag of almunds and drink tysan, or in the hete, smal ale and thyn; and gif the sekman covet gretly to drynk vyn, gif therfor venager mengyd wyt mekyl water, bot gif ye may get qwyte wyn of the Reyn, it is better than rede wyne. Oyse mesurably tham all drynks. Alsua it is gude to oyse a powder, that is sud agayn al venom, that is made of thir herbys, or of sum of thaim that best be gottyn, scil. dytan, pynpnole, turmentyn, and schavyose, and ij maner of spyces scil. bolwar-nil and terra sygillata ; thir twa spyces has the self vertu of thir herbys befor wrytyn: thir spycery brayde be thaim self, and drunkyn wyt wyn or ale, casts out vename fra the samyn place quhar it had entre gif a man be venomed, therfor qwa so dreds him of this seknes, kep him fra the tyngs that ar specyfyde in the first chapter.

And qua so therin kep him betyme as the tother chapter thechis, and rowllis him efter the theching of this trethis, throw sekyyrly, that he sal be hale throu the grace of God ; gif he will kep him in the manner beforsayd, he sal not dred no pestilens of byle na of agu.

Explicit quidam nobilis tractatus contra pestilenciam, et contra universa febrium genera.

Amen.
